Dear Robert,

I am a big fan of your radio program. Your program is interesting and you give great suggestions to many people. Now I really need your help.

Last night, I argued with my mother. A boy student called me to talk about homework and my mother was angry with me for that. She stopped me from making friends with the boy. But I think it normal to make friends with boys. Am I wrong? What should I do?

Kelly

Dear Kelly,

Thanks for trusting me. I'd like to share my thought with you. You should always remember that your mother loves you. Your mother might misunderstand you and the boy because she doesn't know your school life much. If you can talk more about your friends and experiences at school with her, she will understand you better.

Robert

48. From the passage, we know Robert is a _____.
A. teacher B. student C. TV reporter D. radio host
49. Kelly's mother was angry with her because _____.

A. they will argue a lot more
B. they will have a better relationship
C. she will make more friends at school
D. she will get better grades at school

C

The little wolf, White Fang, made an enemy of the dog, Lip-Lip. Lip-Lip attacked him whenever he could. He was bigger and stronger than White Fang and always won their fights. White Fang knew that he could not win a fight against Lip-Lip. He thought that he had to do something else to teach the dog a lesson.

① One day, he was playing at a river bank when he saw Lip-Lip come. He suddenly got a good idea. He pretended to be hurt and unable to run fast. When Lip-Lip ran after him, he led Lip-Lip to the place where his mother stayed. When Lip-Lip got close to her, she turned Lip-Lip over and bit him until she let him go, but White Fang had a bigger problem.

Lip-Lip was the leader of the other dogs. They followed him and obeyed him. None of them would become friends with White Fang. Whenever he came near them, they attacked him.

② He was never allowed to play with the other dogs. This made him unhappy and angry. He often forgot how to behave well.

③ Several days later, White Fang saw a man take his mother in a small boat. He tried to follow them. He jumped into the river and swam after the boat. Another man came after White Fang in his boat. He lifted White Fang out of the water. White Fang tried to get away from the man, but the man hit him and threw him into the boat.

④ White Fang was now very angry because he wanted to be with his mother. He forgot how powerful men were, and he bit the man. The man was so angry that he beat White Fang again and again. The man hurt him badly.

White Fang finally learned that he couldn't bite a man because if he did, he would be beaten badly.

——Adapted from White Fang

51. Why did White Fang always lose the fights with Lip-Lip? _____
A. Because he wanted to make Lip - Lip happy.
B. Because he wanted to make friends with Lip-Lip.
C. Because he was bigger and stronger than Lip-Lip.
D. Because he was smaller and weaker than Lip-Lip.

52.It's better to put "White Fang was always alone." in_____.

A.①

B.②

C.③

D.④

53.According to the last paragraph, we can infer (推断) that_____.

A.White Fang would continue to bite people

B.White Fang would enjoy staying with people

C.White Fang would keep away from people

D.White Fang would not be afraid of being beaten by people

Searching for parking spaces has long been a headache for many office workers in many big cities of China, especially for those working in central business districts. Parking near their companies for five days a week could cost them a lot of money. At the same time, even with prices for parking lots in residential areas (居民区) rising, most of their spaces remain idle during workdays.

Now a new form of sharing economy has appeared in China—the shared parking space. It has become a huge market in some big cities. In Qingdao,a coastal city in Shandong, up to 10,000 personal parking spaces have been turned into shared ones with the help of "Airparking", an online shared parking platform developed by a network company from Guangzhou.

Users can share and order a parking place by downloading and using a special app. Owners who have idle parking spaces can share some information,including the parking position, license number and time limit on the platform. With the information, users can easily find the nearest place to park. The average parking cost for shared parking is 4 yuan each hour,almost the same as the service cost in traditional parking spaces.

Qingdao is one of the Chinese cities that encourage shared parking. Some other big cites, including Beijing, Shanghai and Hefei, have also begun to try this idea. The Shanghai government,for example, has set up more than 6,500 shared parking spaces to encourage the public to use. Shared parking will be more and more helpful to the drivers.

54.The underlined word "idle" probably means_____in Chinese in Paragraph1.

A.懒散的

B.降价的

C.闲置的

D.废弃的

55.If you want to use shared parking in Qingdao,you should_____.

A. download and use a special app

B. share your personal information

C. have a parking space of your own

D. work in central business districts

56.The structure (结构) of the passage is_____.

57.What can we infer from the passage?

A. Qingdao has fewer shared parking spaces than Shanghai.

B. Shared parking will probably become more and more popular.

C. Shared parking is less expensive than traditional parking service.

D. It's hard to find parking spaces in residential areas during workdays.

七、阅读填空 (本大题共 5 小题, 每小题 1 分, 共 5 分)

Since the COVID-19 (新冠) outbreak, many people have to stay at home for long periods of time to protect themselves from the virus (病毒). This has given people more free time to learn new skills and find different ways to have fun.

Some of these activities include things like singing, learning to cook and ordering fresh food online. All of these things can be done easily in your hand with mobile apps.

Before, young people would go outside and meet friends at karaoke bars. Now, friends can meet and sing on the mobile karaoke app Changba, which translates to Singing Bar. "The Changba app not only gives me the chance to sing whatever I like at home, but also lets me keep in touch with friends by sharing our songs," said an app user.

Some people have also taken up cooking as a new hobby to pass the time. You don't need to attend cooking schools, for apps like Xiachufang and Ecook give a helping hand to those who want to learn how to cook. With large numbers of photos and videos, it is easy to look up different recipes (菜谱) and follow the advice. "Using this app, I have learned many new and healthy dishes which help me eat better," an app user said on the app's website.

To help you stay away from somewhere full of people, like supermarkets, apps that deliver goods (送货) right to your door have also become very popular. "Many elderly people who weren't used to doing the shopping on apps have become our new users," Zhang Yi, an office worker from the market research company, said.

Indeed, during this special time, these apps have opened up a whole new world of chances to people of all ages and backgrounds.
